HITLER'S TURN NEXT?

The tempo of the war in Europe has become so rapid that Mussolini has already been all but forgotten. Many persons are actually awaiting the imminent replacement of Hitler by one of his military lackeys to be followed by perhaps a few weeks or months of fighting, all disastrous for the Germans, and then unconditional surrender.

All this belongs to the category of "what if" thinking, but it might be pointed out that more fantastic predictions than this have been made in the past, to be vindicated by events. It is even possible that on October 11, 1918, a reckless individual somewhere in Allied circles predicted that the First World War would end on November 11, 1918, or one month later. But there is no record of such a prediction having appeared in print.

BOMBERS OVER PLOESTI

Time alone can tell how much damage our low-flying Liberators did to the Ploesti oil refineries in Rumania. The target lay in a vital spot and the blow was certainly heavy. Germany and her conquered territories produce too much oil, both natural and synthetic, to be chiefly dependent on the product of the Ploesti refineries. But it is from Ploesti that Germany gets her "quick" oil for the Eastern front. Here she refines much of her synthetic aviation fuel and the superior lubricants which planes require. The total output of natural oil available to Hitler is thought to be about 200,000 barrels a day. Of this Rumania produces between 125,000 and 150,000 barrels a day, not all of it in the Ploesti fields. The Reich itself supplies the rest, mostly by synthetic means.

In fact, in October, 1918, the British government communicated the discouraging news to Washington that the Kaiser was planning a new and more horrible all-out U-boat campaign for the spring of 1919, and warned the American government that only the building of a fleet of never before suggested submarines could possibly meet the possibility of such a campaign.

It was convinced would be launched.

Obviously, London did not then think that the end of the war was near, or that it would occur before the spring of 1919.

But it is too bad, in a way, that Mussolini has been relegated to the back of the parade. The man who was hailed as a savior and became something of a hero in the eyes of the world, only to find himself seriously when he went into Ethiopia, and he left his impression on his times in other ways. Hitler undoubtedly was inspired to the seizure of the German government by the success Mussolini was having in Italy at the time and others of features of the German government by the dictator in Rome.

Mussolini's black shirts became the brown shirts of Hitler. The little socialist agitator who nurtured his ego on the plaudits of a simple people who permitted themselves to be told that they were to become the master race—another idea later stolen by Hitler—really did considerable damage in his way. Millions of new graves in Europe are due to the efficiency of the movement he started in 1922, with the acquiescence of Italy's puppet king.

What, if anything, will be Mussolini's punishment after the war remains to be seen. But if Hitler joins him soon in the discards, perhaps the world will be able to make arrangements for a double hanging. Certainly, if London and Washington are too squeamish to stretch the necks of this pair, all they will need to do is turn them over to Stalin. Joe will have no qualms.

KOMMEL IN GREECE

Berlin's fourth-month silence on the whereabouts of Marshal Edwin Kommel has just been broken by the announcement of his arrival at Salonika. Indeed, the news is published with a bit of fanfare, and illustrated with confirming photographs. Why the mystery has been cleared up at this particular time is clear enough. Dr. Goebbels finds the event a convenient means of assuring the perturbed German public that the Balkans will not be relinquished without a struggle.

The "Kommel" arrives in Greece some of the most of the latter part of the early African victories gave him. Nevertheless he made a desperate fight there, and won a kind of Fabian fame by conducting the long retreat in history. He ended in disaster, to be sure; but he at least was saved. What he can do in the Balkans must be almost as much a question mark to him as to the rest of the world. Events in Italy have left the whole Balkan peninsula vulnerable. His problem will be to find some thing solid in the midst of the melting away which is going on there, meeting away of the Italian armies of occupation, and of the bestial structure which held the Axis conquests together.

Rommel's emergence in the Balkans or possibly have a significance that the German people have not grasped. He has become the leading German specialist in retreat. The invasion of Sicily, main battle of Italy, may have persuaded the Nazis that Crete, bastion of the Balkans, cannot be more successfully defended. German and Italian troops are reported in connection with the reported decision of the German High Command to vacate central Italy and in the north might apply equally well to the Balkan peninsula. If it became necessary to evacuate the lower Balkans in order to establish a strong line in the north.

Children's clothes have a way of needing Mother's constant attention. These days, when every garment must be made to last as long as possible, a "stitch in time" often saves school or play clothes from wearing out. In wartime it is patriotic to make your clothes do full duty.

Forest View

Forest View, Aug. 2. Rev. A. C. Lawson preached to a very attentive congregation last Sunday A. M. at Central Baptist Church, Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. were held before services, and the W. M. M. meeting was held after the service.

GOD SHOWS HIS PEOPLE THE WAY

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 13:17-22; 15:1-7. GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my strength and he will be my salvation. —Exodus 15:2.

The destinies of the nations are in the hands of God. Warriors are mighty in battle, counselors are quick to declare their wisdom, and diplomats are clever in the manipulation of wealth and people. But when they have all exercised to the limit their ingenuity and power they have only succeeded in bringing us "blood, sweat and tears" as the portion of all mankind.

Israel was about to be delivered from the bondage of Egypt, and God showed his people the way. He led them by a pillar of cloud and fire that did not depart from them. He showed them the way to the land of promise, and he showed them the way to the land of Canaan.

There was a direct, easy road along the coast of the Mediterranean up to Canaan, but God showed them the way to the land of promise, and he showed them the way to the land of Canaan.
